Part 32: Freelancing - Websites

LEGAL NOTICE: The Publishers have strived to be as accurate and complete as possible in the creation of this report, notwithstanding the fact that they do not warrant or represent at any time that the contents within are accurate due to the rapidly changing nature of the Internet.

This publication is not intended for use as a source of legal, business, accounting or financial advice. All readers are advised to seek services of competent professionals in legal, business, accounting, and finance fields.

This is part #2 of the No Cost Freelancing System. We will be talking all about freelancing websites. These are websites and job boards that offer you a chance to promote yourself and to find those that are seeking help. It is one of the best ways to start finding work and to make money. These high traffic sites connect freelancers with clients.

Many people that make good money as freelancers got their start at www.odesk.com. Most of the large freelancing sites are free to set up an account. In fact, you can often land jobs without having to spend any money at all. You just pay a small fee from that job. On many sites, that fee comes from the vendor/purchaser of the project. It is a great way to generate money without investing in marketing.

Basically, you will complete a profile and then you can start bidding on jobs. Some sites will let you post your services for clients to find. We will address that as we move along. The best way to find jobs is to get going and set up on a few freelance sites. The one that is large, professional, and easy to use is www.odesk.com.

The screenshot shows the oDesk website homepage. The header is green with the oDesk logo, navigation links (Hire Freelancers, Find Work, How It Works), and contact information (Need help hiring? Call 1-855-946-3375, Mon-Fri // 6am-6pm PST). There are also links for Log in and Sign up. The main banner features a collage of diverse people's faces and the text "Get the right freelancer. Get the job done." Below this, there are two buttons: "Want to hire? Post a job!" (blue) and "Want a job? Sign up!" (green). A red arrow points from the "Sign up" button in the header to the green "Sign up" button in the banner. Another red arrow points from the "Sign up" button in the banner to the "Take a spin through our top freelancers" section. This section includes the text "Take a spin through our top freelancers" and four cards representing different freelance roles: Web Programmers, SEO Experts, Software Developers, and Freelance Writers. Each card has a representative image and the role name in blue text.

There is a button for hiring or getting jobs. You will sign up and then create your account. You will need to put in your name, email, username/password, and you are ready to go. If you have LinkedIn or Facebook you can sign up with those accounts as well. Once you are logged in, you can read the F&Q. The freelancer rate includes a 10% ODesk fee. That 10% comes from the set amount that the person paying for the job offers. That is how they make money and keep it free for you.

Great careers start on ODesk; it is the #1 ranking in terms of annual freelance earnings. If you want to understand more of how it works, check out the site. The nuts and bolts of it though is you don't pay anything up front. It is high traffic and they have thousands of jobs on there that you can look at.

You can start by inserting a profile image.

You don't have to, but you should as it helps you to stand out. It helps you to stand apart from those that don't have one. You don't have to be the prettiest person. It really just helps the potential buyer to connect with you. It helps them to communicate and to start to trust you. Get good content and a photo out there. Look for profiles on ODesk so you can get a good idea about those that work well and that get attention.

Go to the homepage and you can check on those that are applying for jobs. Click on any category and it will bring up a window where you can read the profile of someone.

The screenshot displays a freelance marketplace homepage. At the top, there is a grid of eight category cards, each featuring a representative image and a title: Web Programmers, SEO Experts, Software Developers, Freelance Writers, Web Designers, Mobile App Developers, Data Entry Specialists, and Virtual Assistants. A red arrow points from the top right towards the 'Data Entry Specialists' card, and another red arrow points from the bottom left towards the 'Web Designers' card. Below the grid is a search bar with the placeholder text 'What kind of freelancer do you need?' and a 'Search' button. At the bottom, the page is divided into two main sections: 'Explore top freelancers' and 'Get to work!'. The 'Explore top freelancers' section contains two columns of category links. The 'Get to work!' section features two highlighted options: 'hire on demand' and 'manage the work', each with an icon and a brief description.

Explore top freelancers		Get to work!
Web Development	Design & Multimedia	 hire on demand Build a flexible workforce based on skills, ratings, and reviews.
Software Development	Customer Service	 manage the work See work-in-progress screenshots, time sheets, and daily logs.
Networking & Information Systems	Sales & Marketing
Writing & Translation	Business Services
Administrative Support

You will notice they talk about what they offer. They will have a photo; they will have reviews from other customers. As you get more customers and hours, then you will be able to show you are credible.

We all know a "hotshot" who couldn't make it in the publishing world because he was unorthodox and preferred to work outside the cage. I am that guy. My permanently crooked fingers and faded palm rests on my MacBook are testament to my addiction to writing. I spent the late '90s and early aughts writing the print equivalent of squeeze pages, advertisements and product reviews for magazines and newspapers with circulation in millions. But the last four years of my life have been tremendous. I got a chance to rub shoulders with the giants in digital marketing space and work for behemoths such as Amazon, Microsoft, and industry-leading companies like CBS. Having retired to a life of freelancing, I now spend my time juggling a bunch of writing and digital marketing projects for a select few clients. As a grammar-school-educated Birmingham boy, I am very emotional about my work and craft. My natural writing style is witty and blunt, but when the mood strikes, prose becomes po ...

It all starts out with the first work, so you have to jump in. You will need a good profile to stand out and get those jobs. Then your stats will start to speak for themselves. You will be shown as a reliable freelancer that can provide quality work for those in need.

Take the time to complete a good profile before you apply for any jobs. All of the information helps them to verify you as a freelancer and a person. They aren't going to share all of the details from your profile with each potential buyer. However, the website does want to have some basic details to verify you are a real person.

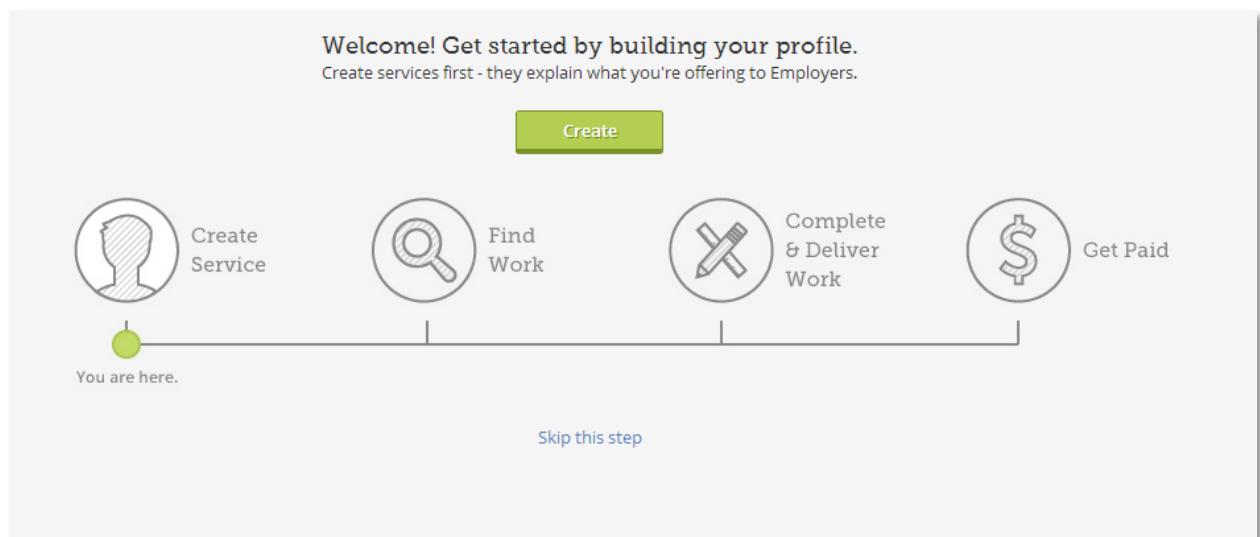

You will need to take a job readiness test so that you can apply for up to 20 jobs per week. That averages to about 80 jobs per month just by completing this free test. That will set you apart from those that don't. It will give you more chances to bid. Any time that a free freelancer site has a free test for you to take, do so. It is good for your continued success.

Another very popular freelance site is www.guru.com.

They have thousands of potential jobs that you can bid on. Read the job description and if it is a good fit for you, click the green apply button. The site is simple to navigate and you can apply for what you would like to do.

Another very popular site is www.freelancer.com, it used to be RentaCoder but they merged to create a large site with so many jobs. It may be the largest freelance site out there now. These are all high powered websites with tons of visitors on there. It is a very similar process for bidding on them for each site.

You will notice that Freelancer allows you to take exams to for various categories. Only take exams for the types of work that you would like to do. The exams will really increase your chances of getting the jobs you apply for. You are almost 4 times more likely to get hired on this site for a job if you have completed the exam. It is well worth your investment of the time.

On your free account with Freelancer, you have 10 free bids. You want to be selective about what you bid on. You can bid how much you want to make and it will increase for their fees. For example, if you say you want to earn $140, it will be $155.56 to the buyer. That will cover the Freelancer fees so you don't pay anything out of your pocket to get started.

The screenshot shows the Freelancer website interface. At the top, there's a dark header with the Freelancer logo, user level (LVL 3), currency (USD $0), and user profile (countonuspr). Below this is a pink navigation bar with links: Post Project, Find Freelancers, Browse Projects, Post Contest, and Help. A search bar is on the right. Underneath is a dashboard menu with links: Dashboard, My Projects, Profile, Inbox, Finances, Disputes, Exams, Invite Friends, and Freemarket. A promotional banner offers a FREE 30-day upgrade to Plus Membership (save $9.95USD). A central box encourages users to 'Certify your skills to increase your chance of being awarded!' with a 'Take Exam' button for 'Adobe Photoshop CS5 - Level 1'. It states that freelancers who pass exams are 370% more likely to be awarded. A red arrow points from this box to a 'Bid on This Project' button. Below this, the project listing for 'Build an Articulate training program' is shown. It includes a table with 6 bids, an average bid of $230, and a project budget of $30 - $250. The project is 'OPEN' with 6 days and 1 hour left. The project description states: 'We're developing a short training video to educate our staff on what our Marketing team does. We'd like to use Articulate software. We have the slides ready to go and will write a script, we're just not familiar with how to use Articulate and would like help in the design of this video.' The skills required are 'Education & Tutoring, Graphic Design, Powerpoint, Training, Website Design'. The project is posted by 'tkerr' (verified) with a 0.0 rating (0 reviews). A 'Follow' button is next to the poster's profile. At the bottom right, there's an advertisement for a 'FREE 30 Day Trial of Plus Membership'.

Another website to consider is www.peopleperhour.com.

This is a site where you can connect with various business owners that need help. Individuals who are looking for the kinds of services that you offer. You can sell your services or you can sign up for an account on their website.

One of the features I like at People Per Hour is that you can post a job and get paid per hour a set amount. You can write an article and select if it is a daily project, hourly, etc. You can say that you can write 10 articles in a day for $60. You can say you can write a press release for $75 for example. If you are good at writing, etc. you can make money doing this and you can post your hourly rate. Then those that are looking for help can come across what you posted.

The screenshot shows the 'Post an Hourlie' form on the People Per Hour website. The header includes the logo, navigation links for 'Buy Services', 'Sell Services', and 'Post Hourlie', and user options for 'Sign Up' or 'Log In'. A notification banner asks if the user's profile is stopping them from winning work. The main heading is 'Post an Hourlie in Seconds', followed by a description: 'Hourlie: a packed service you can deliver for a fixed price in a set timeframe.' The form fields include: a description box with an example 'I can design your business card for $60'; a delivery time dropdown set to 'in 1 day'; a category dropdown set to 'Pick one..'; a tags input field with the placeholder 'Type here to add...'; a section for 'Make it fun: upload photos, videos!' with options to 'Upload video or photos', 'Embed from 3rd party sites', or 'Add Quote'; and a final text area to 'Provide more details about your Hourlie' with the instruction 'Explain in more detail what exactly you will deliver to the Buyer...'. On the right sidebar, there is a quote about Thomas Edison and a link to 'Tips & guidelines' with a lightbulb icon.

A freelance site that is often overlooked is www.craigslist.com. Business owner's actually pay money to this site to post those listings. I have Baltimore as an example but you can use your Craigslist for your area. However, you can look for jobs listed for locations around the world. They are looking for content, websites, etc. that you can create and deliver from home.

The screenshot shows the Craigslist website for Baltimore. The layout includes a left sidebar with navigation links, a main content area with various job categories, and a right sidebar with nearby city links. A red arrow points from the 'for sale' section to the 'gigs' section in the 'jobs' category.

For those of you that can do graphic design work, check out www.99designs.com. If you are into writing you can skip this part of the training. Here, you can go bid on designs that people want help with. You will find plenty of work here and you can be creative. It helps to separate you from the competition too. Next thing you know, you may have plenty of job offers coming in based on previous services.

Another website that is related to only writing is www.freelancewritinggigs.com. If you put in your name and email, they will send you emails about new jobs that you can potentially apply for. You can go through and see what works for you. Most of the jobs can be done from home; they aren't looking for someone local.
