This is part #6, the final part of No Cost Freelancing. In this part, we are going to talk about freelancing accepting payments. This is how you get paid for your freelance services. Keep in mind that most of the sites that we mentioned actually take care of the payments for you. They will accept the payments from the customer. That is how they help to keep the site safe. Then they will redistribute that payment to you.

They may give it to you in the form of a debit card. Most of the time it is a bank wire so they send the money right to your bank account. They will send you a check in many options too. They will handle the payments for you. Those you don't need to worry about at all. You don't need a payment set up at all.

Most of the micro job sites will do this for you as well. Fiverr for example will pay you through PayPal or with Payoneer. A debit card will work just like a credit card or bank card. The money is loaded right on there and you can spend it from the card or you can make a cash withdrawal at an ATM.

If you find work on Craigslist, classified ads, or forums, you may need other payment options. There are many of them you can choose. A good one is www.paypal.com because so many people use it.

If that doesn't work in your country, consider www.bluesnap.com. There are other choices but both of these are no cost strategies which is what we are really trying to accomplish throughout this course.

The image shows the homepage of the BlueSnap website. At the top, there is a navigation bar with the BlueSnap logo (labeled 'Powered Buy'), links for 'Blog', 'Support', 'Login', and a prominent orange 'Sign Up Now' button. Below the navigation bar is a horizontal menu with links for 'Why BlueSnap', 'Customers', 'Developers', 'News & Events', and 'Pricing'. The main hero section features a large background image of a smiling woman in a white blazer working on a laptop. Overlaid on the left side of this image is the text 'Accept global payments easily and securely.', a blue 'Sign Up Now' button, the text 'Rates as low as 2.9% + 30¢', and the tagline 'BlueSnap | A smarter payment gateway'. Below the hero section is a section titled 'Our innovative customers speak up' with the subtitle 'Thousands of happy merchants and counting'. This section includes a video player showing a testimonial from Kate Willett, Founder of ViralGains, with a play button icon. To the right of the video is a quote: 'BlueSnap was really passionate about making it easy for us to accept payments.' - Kate Willett, Founder, ViralGains. At the bottom of the page, there are logos for several partner companies: ViralGains, BeautyMotive, and Transparent Language.

If neither of those work for you, then you may need to just stick to the freelance sites. If you go to www.paypal.com you will see on the top right where you sign up for a new account. If you already have an account, you can just login. At www.bluesnap.com sign up or sign in at the top right hand corner as well. Neither one charge you anything until you actually do make a sell which is the beauty of these sites.

If you do work on freelance sites and micro gig sites, you don't need to worry about a payment provider. You can just disregard this part of the training. Now is the time to get out there and set up a payment processor if you will need to use one. The key part is to take action with this freelancing training. There are some phenomenal tips and strategies that you can use to start generating money. It doesn't have to cost you anything at all either if you follow what we have taught.
